Guidelines from USGA

Question: What is a Hole in One?

Answer: The Rules of Golf do not address the issue of the validity of a hole-in-one. It is up to the Committee to determine whether a hole-in-one is valid. The USGA recommends that a hole-in-one be considered valid:

- a) If made during a round of at least nine holes, except that a hole-in-one made during a match should be acceptable even if the match ends before the stipulated round is completed.
- b) If the player is playing one ball; a hole-in-one made in a practice round in which the player is playing two or more balls should not be acceptable
- c) If attested by someone acceptable to the Committee
- d) If made at a hole with a temporary tee and/or putting green in use, even if the Committee did not specifically define the teeing ground with tee-markers; the length of the hole at the time should be stated on any certificate
- e) If made in a "scramble" competition, which is played as follows: A side comprised four players. Each member of a side plays from the teeing ground, the best drive is selected, and each member plays a second shot from where the best drive is located, and so on.
